

OUR THIRD-PARTY FUNDING PRACTICE

Law firms and companies are increasingly utilizing litigation finance as a strategic finance tool to transform disputes from cost-centres to revenue generators. With globalisation of businesses and transnationalization of disputes, commercial claims are increasingly viewed as an asset by third-party funding companies, who provide the necessary financial tools to monetise these assets.

Funders and litigants face a myriad of challenges, including diligence of and preparing an investment proposal for complex commercial claims, legal restrictions in certain jurisdictions on third-party funding, distressed litigant and insolvency risks and increasing complexity of funding structures and securities. Most funding transactions involve understanding of more than dispute resolution and debt recovery system, which pose challenges that can significantly affect deal value. It is thus crucial to have lawyers that can navigate through this complex environment.

Our team is exceptionally well positioned to do this. With our in depth understanding of cross-border disputes, global enforcement, debt recovery, investigations and asset tracing, we provide a one-stop solution to both litigants and funders. Our innovative commercial and highly strategic approach to complex international disputes helps clients identify the true potential of their claim portfolio.

Some highlights of our work include:

- Representing a leading global litigation funder for its investment in a portfolio concerning:
 - The Western Freight Corridor, India.
 - The Bangalore Metro Project, India
